

Wellington history of revival

In the late 1800's and early 1900's, Wellington was the focus of Christian revival, with Andrew Murray being used by God as the key human instrument. His influence lives on through the college he founded and through his numerous books. Today many are praying for a new move of God in this small town, and a spreading out into South Africa and into the wider world.

Conference
Wellington, South Africa
25 - 27 July 2008

Urgent challenges of our day:

Science and the Creator
Theology at the crossroads
Crisis in sexual and relational brokenness
Participation Christianity
Stepping in line with God's agenda

Johan du Toit is married to Linda and they live in Paarl where he is part of the leadership team of an evangelical / charismatic fellowship. He has for the past 10 years been actively involved in ministering both locally and countrywide to people who need help in areas of relational and sexual brokenness.

Michael Jarvis obtained a PhD in zoology from Cape Town University in 1971. His research career has covered various topics and resulted in nearly 100 scientific and popular science publications. Throughout his career he has been researching major questions relating Christianity with scientific discovery. This culminated in 2007 with a 600 page book that presents these questions in a way that removes an enormous stumbling block to bible-based faith, for many people raised in our scientific and technological generation. Today Michael and his wife Anna live in Wellington.

Andre le Roux has been involved in pastoral ministry for over 30 years. He has a Bachelor of Divinity degree from the University of Pretoria and also a B.Sc. degree in Mathematics. Andre has a burden for the church in our day: that it will be true to its Master and will fulfil its end-time calling. He is married to Marisa and together they have six children and five grand-children.
